The CRG Racing Team and Ethan Jeff-Hall are the 2024 World Champions of the OK category, the top direct drive class. The event, the most prestigious and important of the international season, was held in England at the PF International Circuit from September 12th to 15th. This circuit has always been a battlefield for English drivers and this year too was no exception, with an all-English podium in OK and an English winner in Junior. For the CRG colours, this prestigious success enriches our wall of fame in FIA events, bringing the world titles won to 25.

Ethan Jeff-Hall joined the CRG team only at the end of the season and throughout the weekend he was simply perfect, both on a dry and wet track. In the qualifying practice he obtained 4th place overall and after the qualifying heats he gained the 1st row next to poleman Joe Turney. Only an hour before the Final heavy rain began on the English track and the decisive race took place with rain tyres and without ever having tested any wet set-up during the weekend. The race was exciting, intense, and was only decided on the last lap when race leader Turney made a small mistake under constant pressure from Ethan, who thus took the lead and won the 2024 title.

This success has an important sporting and commercial value for CRG and repays all the technical staff for the incredible work carried out in this long racing season. Still in the OK category, CRG also brought Olin Galli and Davide Bottaro to the Final: the Brazilian was penalized for the front spoiler, finishing in 14th place and Davide Bottaro, unfortunately, was involved in a contact during the first lap. In the OK Junior category Mats Van Rooijen had a solid weekend, excellent 3rd overall in the qualifying practice and then always at the top in the heats too. But unfortunately in the Final a race contact relegated him, causing him to miss out on a significant result. Asher Ochstein and Manuel Miguez were also unlucky in OK Junior, out of the Final due to some contacts and problems in the heats despite excellent speed.
